Should scripture be interpreted literally or metaphorically?	"We believe the Biblical account of the creation of the physical universe, angels, and man; that this account is neither allegory nor myth, but a literal, historical account of the direct, immediate creative acts of God without any evolutionary process; that man was created by a direct work of God and not from previously existing forms of life, and that all men are descended from the historical Adam and Eve, first parents of the entire human race." (General Association of Regular Baptists) "Inspiration extends to the very words of the Scriptures, not just to the thoughts and ideas expressed by human authors." (Free Will Baptists)	"The Bible [...] is not a divinely dictated scientific textbook" (Episcopal Church, USA) "God calls the worlds into being' [...] understand this to be a poetic or anthropomorphic way of describing the origin of the Universe that scientists speak of as the Fireball, Big Bang, or Great Radiance." (United Church of Christ) "It is important to set proper limits to the understanding of Scripture, excluding any unseasonable interpretations which would make it mean something which it is not intended to mean." (Roman Catholic Church)
Should scripture or nature be the ultimate authority in science?	"The Bible is without error and trustworthy in all its teachings, including cosmogony, geology, astronomy, anthropology, history, chronology, etc., as well as in matters of faith and practice. Being the very Word of God, it is God's final revelation and our absolute authority." (Free Will Baptists) "We would also be making a very serious error simply to accept the theories of science without question. Many aspects of evolutionary theory are directly contradictory to God's Word." (Lutheran Church Missouri-Synod)	"We discover scientific knowledge about God's universe in nature not Scripture." (Episcopal Church, USA) "Nowhere is the process by which God made, created or formed man set out in scientific terms. A description of this process in its physical aspects is a matter of natural science. The Bible is not a book of science." (Presbyterian Church USA) "There is nothing here that contradicts Christian teaching. Jesus himself invited people to observe the world around them and to reason from what they saw to an understanding of the nature of God (Matthew 6: 25-33)." (Church of England)
What should the relation between science and religion be?	"Since the Bible is the Word of God, it is without error in all matters upon which it speaks, whether history, geography, matters relating to science or any other subject." (Free Will Baptists) "There is a need for God's people to unite against the teaching of evolution as a scientific fact" (Church of God Cleveland Tennessee)	"Our responsibility as Christians is to deal seriously with the theories and findings of all scientific endeavors, evolution included." (Presbyterian Church USA) "We preclude science from making authoritative claims about theological issues and theology from making authoritative claims about scientific issues. [...] Science and theology are complementary rather than mutually incompatible. We therefore encourage dialogue between the scientific and theological communities and seek the kind of participation that will enable humanity to sustain life on earth and, by God's grace, increase the quality of our common lives together." (United Methodist Church) "For Buddhism, it is pretty much irrelevant. Although the Buddhist religion has a rich store of myths and stories, it is not dependent on a specific cosmological narrative."
Evolution or devolution?	"Evolution is therefore incompatible with the Bible. Evolution presents modern man as an improving animal. The Bible presents modern man as the degenerating descendant of a perfect man." (Jehovah's Witnesses)	"And we hold that it is better and nobler - better to have risen from cave and jungle than to have fallen from Eden, better to have developed from the animal than to have degenerated from the angel; better to have begun at the bottom and toiled to the top, than to have begun at the summit and rolled down to the base; better to have the golden age before us than behind us; better to be on the way to perfection, with hope and courage, than to be trudging dis-crowned and dishonored, away from perfection." (Unitarian Universalists)
